Organisation overview

Name: Mo'Pitseng mobile kitchen food services

Brief History: Mo'Pitseng mobile kitchen food services was bought and started operating 2023 of November. It is a family business created by the owner Thabiso Motsoeneng in desperate need of a business empire for his family to help strive for his children and because of being a single parent a lot of things pressured him to think of his children.

Mo'Pitseng is a traditional saying "in the pot" meaning traditional slow-cooking methods over firewood. The inspiration of this kind of business comes from his own culture and the inviting of friends and family to his own house to host a small potjikoes dinner for everyone this brought joy over him and his inspiration was born out of passion for business and cooked food.

Expect the passion of traditional foods he also has discovered the new trend foods like vetkoesks(dibeko),bunny chows(skhumbane) and chips with every side dish that is to your comfort. This is for the affordability of people that have smaller salaries or for people who always have passion for what they call kasi junk food.

This business strives in black ethnicity, black culture and the taste of your own home.

Goals and objectives

Mo’Pitseng is local mobile kitchen food services that aims to keep the tradition of black society food and the feeling of tasting home away from home foods. Phola park has always been a quiet area and there is a secondary school that sometimes struggle with food supplies. The mobile kitchen helps with food supplies as children are able to buy food that are affordable towards themselves.
